Kathy and Raymond Paul cook up a winning operation

BY GARY McMILLEN

It takes awhile to adjust to a new lifestyle. It takes 45 minutes to bring a pot of jambalaya to simmer, and the kitchen at Raymond and Kathy Paul's Fanlew Farms near Sarepta, La., is beginning to smell like Louisiana cooking. The Pauls moved their operation and breeding philosophy from the small panhandle community of Fanlew, Fla., a year and a half ago, and they are beginning to acclimate.

"It's a different way of living here," Kathy Paul said. "Neighbors help each other like nowhere else I have ever been. People are nice. People are friendly, and it's a much slower pace. A lot of people don't use computers here. They want to look you in the eye or talk on the phone."

Finding the location for Fanlew Farms was more of a "Bonnie and Clyde"-like experience than a Web site search. "We just drove around everywhere, getting a feel for the land," Kathy remembered. "It was fun. We started in the southern part of the state, but I didn't like the soil or the possibility of hurricanes. We saw enough hurricanes in Florida. We kept driving north until we landed here almost on the Arkansas border."

A reason for the season. The Pauls' move to Louisiana was loaded with purpose and breeders. You can't just look over one side of the fence."

*A-E and COMPARABLE INDEX: The Lifetime Average-Earnings Index indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned, on the average, in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00. The Comparable Index indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AEI higher than their mares Comparable Index.

The most effective intelligence is fueled by passion. Kathy's feelings for the horse are the real deal. Photos in a family album show her riding a horse before she could walk; one showing her as a toddler tangled in a lead line. As she got older, she began to buy horses, work with them in re-training, get them back to health, and sell them.

"She would go out and buy what looked like a bag of bones with a lip tattoo and that meant that the horse was still alive," Raymond remembered of his wife saving an animal from the killers.

Finding a way to stay in the game. "I kept riding until I was too old to bounce, so I got off of them and started breeding them," Kathy explained. "I still love them. I just don't have to be up on their back anymore. Raising babies became the solution."

It doesn't take a second cup of coffee for Kathy to get revved up when it comes to talking about the Fanlew Farms stallion roster. Honor Glide (best known for sweeping the 1997 Mid-America Triple, a series of graded turf races at Arlington Park) is the clean-up hitter in the Fanlew line-up. "We call him 'the old man' on the farm," Kathy said. "He is my sweetheart and has single-handedly put us on the map. Honor Glide has a high percentage of money earners to number of starters. He's all class. I can walk out there right now in flip-flops and with a cotton rope bring him in to the barn."

Correct and of good size, Chestertown Slew, a stakes-placed son of Seattle Slew, has every right to be a big contributor as a first-year sire.

"He is easy to deal with and has a super disposition," Kathy said. "The phone rang off the hook when we advertised him. He has the potential to have a full book for the 2010 breeding season."

Eight-year-old Chestertown Slew won or placed in nine of 21 starts and is out of the grade II stakes-placed Hansel mare Hansel's Girl, who is a full sister to millionaire Guided Tour.

Iron Man competition. Raymond and Kathy had to call The Jockey Club to confirm that Gemma's Star had actually raced 22 times as a 2-year-old. "Unbelievable that it was true," Kathy said of their durable stallion. "I don't think Seabiscuit started that many times as a 2-year-old. That was my deciding factor to bring him on—his heart. And then he came back to be a stakes winner as a 3-year-old."

Mares and foals have 100 acres to roam at Fanlew Farms

Gemma's Star is an 11-year-old by End Sweep out of the winning Private Account mare Accounting Lady. His dam is a half sister to grade III winner and sire Exclusive Enough and grade II-placed multiple stakes winner and sire Medium Cool. On the racetrack Gemma's Star won the 2002 Blazing Sword Stakes and Needles Stakes at Calder Race Course among six victories while earning $166,305 in three seasons of racing.

A stallion needs numbers to hang his hat on. The Pauls place a lot of emphasis on a horse's race record when deciding to bring a stallion into the Fanlew fraternity. In the case of Jagerman, they made an exception.

"He took an injury, and I won't fault him for that because of his pedigree," Kathy explained. "He's booking very well right now."

Jagerman is a half brother to 2001 Eclipse Award-winning sprinter Squirtle Squirt. Jagerman is a 6-year-old by Fusaichi Pegasus out of the winning Lost Code mare Lost the Code and was a $1.1-million purchase at the 2005 Fasig-Tipton Saratoga yearling sale.

The Argentine-bred Not Phone rounds out the stallion roster. Not Phone was group I-placed as a 2-year-old and set a track record at Belmont Park. He won or placed 13 times in 20 starts from the age of 2 until retiring sound at 9.

A consistent platform of fees has proven to be a standard at Fanlew Farms. Stallions are priced reasonably enough so that breeders can afford them. One thousand dollars for a live foal that stands and nurses is the contract deal.

"We are not going to rock the boat on our prices," Kathy insisted. "We are trying to pick our stallions that have good value and a good chance of surviving out there in the market. We will maintain stability with our stud fees. We are not going to kick people in the shins with high fees or fees that go up and down each year."

Raymond Paul makes a commitment to "do things right"

Born and raised in Massachusetts, Kathy Paul brought the New England policy and procedure manual with her to Louisiana. Rules and standards abound when it comes to breeding racehorses at Fanlew. The motto inscribed on left and right panels of the Fanlew Farms Web site is "Dedicated to Excellence." Click on a link, and you will be told what to do and when to do it.

Example. Newborn foals enter the world without antibody protection. In the first few hours of life, a test (called an IgG) can be administered to evaluate the foal's blood count. Timely diagnosis and early intervention can circumvent a medical crisis.

"I don't care whose horse it is, but if it is on my property, it is going to get an IgG test when that baby foals," Kathy declared. "This may sound cold, but if you don't want to do it the right way, then you are not at the right farm. The test costs $35. Not much, considering the larger investment. The IgG will tell you if that baby has a healthy blood count and has all the necessary antibodies to survive or if the baby needs plasma. Otherwise, it's a crapshoot."

Don't bring a mare to Fanlew Farms without a vet culture. She won't make it off the van.

"You can't breed a dirty mare and expect a healthy foal. I am a fanatic. It's an educational process to get people to see the long-range benefits of veterinary science."

Before moving to Louisiana, the Pauls put in hours of statistical research and made some critical observations. They found that the number of mares being bred in Louisiana compared to the number of live foals was appalling.

"We did our homework and made some decisions," Kathy said. "It's a matter of education and preparation. We plan to contribute to turning those numbers around."

Clockwork efficiency. The preferred breeding process at Fanlew Farms is affectionately known as "breed off the truck." The breeder makes an appointment, brings the mare to the farm, the mare is covered, and then back in the truck and gone.

"Nobody knows that mare better than they do," Kathy said of their breeder clients. "They know how she acts, and they are present, on the spot, to respond if needed."

Getting in touch with Kathy or Raymond is near instantaneous. Cell phone, office phone, home phone, or fax will get you a response.

"It's all about being accessible in this business," Kathy said. "When I call a stallion facility to breed a mare and nobody answers their telephone, well, it's frustrating. Mares don't have 9-5 jobs. When my mare is ready, I need to book a time—not hear a voice recording."

The mantra at Fanlew Farms is to put the safety of the horse first in all design and construction projects. They have installed expensive "flex" fencing for the yearling paddock.

"When a baby runs into it, they bounce off of it. If it saves you one injury, then the expense is worth it."

Showcase presentation can come later. The 100 acres of rolling hills at Fanlew Farms mark a functional, not fancy operation. After a year and a half it is a working farm and a work in progress. The thing to remember is that it is Kathy's way or the highway.

"Whatever we have to do to put a healthy baby on the ground and keep it healthy is the way we are going to do it," she emphasized. "We don't do it better than anybody else, but we do it with the consistent idea of keeping everything safe and clean."

The commitment to do things right and the perseverance to change a culture rings loud and clear in Kathy Paul's words and actions.

"You do this kind of work because you love it," she insisted. "You sure don't do it because you are going to get rich. We learn something useful every day. If you don't, then you are in trouble and going to get stuck in one place. Everything we do revolves around horses. We don't take vacations. Our idea of a vacation is to run off to some horse sale." 🐾
