Facing the Challenge

Tom Roche makes a go of it at his Carmalley Valley Farm in Missouri

BY CLAIRE NOVAK

SUCCESS IN THOROUGHBRED racing is difficult to find and producing the “big horse” is even harder, yet hundreds of small-scale breeding operations persevere. What exactly inspires an owner to invest time and money into what is guaranteed to be an uphill battle? According to Tom Roche of Carmalley Valley Farm, it's all about the challenge. (continued on page 41)

Special Note For Sire Lists:

For stallions that stand, will stand, or stood (deceased) in North America (stallions exported prior to the 2008 breeding season are excluded), and have runners in North America. All available statistics listed for the Northern Hemisphere through December 31, 2012. As supplied to The Blood-Horse by The Jockey Club Information Systems, Inc., earnings exclude monies from Japan and Hong Kong. Current year stakes winners include all N.H.-foaled stakes winners worldwide and any S.H.-foaled horses that won a N.H. stakes. *Foal counts include Southern Hemisphere. Cumulative stakes winners includes all countries. (A ♯ indicates a sire represented by his first crop to race.)

*AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX AND COMPARABLE INDEX: Lifetime AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00; COMPARABLE INDEX indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX higher than their mares' COMPARABLE INDEX.

On his 500-acre spread near St. Charles, Mo., Roche is raising homebreds to compete...on the Indiana circuit. His two stallions, Storm Account and Dr Large, stand in the Hoosier state at Trifecta Trace at Hartmeyer Stables near Muncie.

"I got into the Indiana breeding program about five years ago," said Roche, 58. "It seemed like it could be fairly lucrative if you had some quality stock to compete in the restricted races. Our plan was to produce our own homebreds to sell and race, Indiana-sired by our stallions, out of our mares."

Roche's interest in Thoroughbreds goes back about 15 years to a quail hunting trip in Kansas, when he discovered one of his buddies was involved in racing.

"He owned a couple of horses and that's how it got started," Roche recalled. "I thought I might like to have a little skin in the game rather than just be a spectator. That side of the sport was intriguing to me."

One of Roche's first runners, purchased privately as a yearling, was the Miner's Mark filly Carmalley. Bred in Kentucky by Diamond Oak Farm out of the Danzig mare Danzig's Song, she won four times and was in the money on several other occasions, always coming with a late run. When she retired, Roche bred her to Pure Prize, but her foal was stillborn and she ripped badly during the delivery and could not be bred again.

"After a start like that, you'd think I'd know better," said Roche, who retired the (continued on page 43)

Instead, he named his farm in honor of Carmalley and continued the quest to breed good runners.

Roche, a successful businessman whose investments have been in equipment leasing, insurance, and real estate, has lived in Missouri since he was in his teens. He resides in a suburb of St. Louis with his wife, Lisa, who has recently become involved with the bookkeeping aspects of Carmalley Valley Farm. Daughters Paige and Erin are both in college and could become more active in the business when they graduate.

Now he has decided to scale back to six or seven of the best mares from a group that numbered about 20 at its largest.

"To be honest, we didn't really anticipate the market was going to stay depressed for so many years," he said. "We changed our business model recently, and we're actuprivately from Overbrook Farm after suffering a training accident as a 2-year-old. He was bred by Juddmonte Farms out of the stakes-winning Private Account mare Private Line.

"He's a young son of Storm Cat, and he was appealing to me because he's a true outcross stallion, which you don't see very often these days," Roche said of the 7-year-old horse, whose female side sports a long line of European-based stakes-producing mares. "He's totally free of any inbreeding, and he was bred by one of the best in the business."

Similar pedigree strengths attracted Roche to the farm's second stallion, the 7-year-old A.P. Indy horse Dr Large, out of the Mr. Prospector mare Debit Account. Dr Large won the Capital City Stakes at Penn National and was third in the Kent Stakes (gr. IIIT) at Delaware Park.

"He was intriguing to me, not only because he was out of a Mr. Prospector mare like all the great sons of A.P. Indy, but he has five strains of La Troienne, the great blue hen mare found in many great stallions," Roche said.

Over the years mares have come from far and wide—including Kentucky, California, Louisiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Colorado—to breed to Carmalley Valley stallions.

"Being from Missouri, we've had to make friends all across the country," said Roche. "We depend on a lot of different people with a variety of different skill sets along the way."

The farm also stood the Storm Cat stallion Cat Dreams, sire of grade II stakes winner Caracortado, from 2010-12. He was sold privately to Saudi Arabian interests for 2013.

"Compared to the big breeding farms, we don't have the luxury of operating our farm using the 'best' theory of buy the best, breed to the best, and hope for the best," Roche said. "We have to pick and choose our purchases wisely, studying and researching successful bloodlines and historic, successful nicking patterns within our budget. I guess it's the same theory, only on a smaller scale."

One of the keys to sustainability for Roche has been a willingness to adapt his business plans as he learns more about the industry. He also is a regular attendee of clinics on pedigree, genetics, conformation, and breeding.

"I hate to fail at anything, and I've seen a lot of people fail in this game," he said. "You have to mitigate your risk in this business by trying to make intelligent decisions, and I'm not saying you're going to be correct all the time, but you can't repeat unsuccessful attempts."

Carmalley Valley Farm is a Thoroughbred farm and vineyard with black four-rail fencing and two large horse barns. The Roche family purchased the property 10 years ago and has kept horses on it for the past five years.

"If you didn't know you were in Missouri, you'd think you were in Kentucky," Roche laughed. "We have a beautiful facility that occupies most of my time, and I'm determined to make it a successful business venture."

Last year the farm sold 32 horses privately and at auction. According to Roche, those included foals, weanlings, yearlings, 2-year-olds, and mares. But the family also keeps a few for the track, including their first Indiana-sired filly, Fleece, a daughter of Storm Account out of Hottimeinthecity. The runner-up in a maiden special weight last May 26 at Indiana Downs was Carmalley Valley Farm's first homebred to race.

"We're so proud of her," the owner said. "She ran in a wide-open event, not restricted. There were a lot of Kentucky-breds in there, and she ran tough. We expect big things from her this year. We're really looking forward to it."

Roche said he prefers to race homebreds now, although he first got into the racing game by purchasing runners from other breeders. Carmalley Valley will have three contenders on the track in 2013: Fleece, the Storm Account filly Sushi, and an unnamed Cat Dreams 2-year-old filly out of Hottimeinthecity.

"We've evolved from racing them on our own into partnerships," Roche remarked. "We used to buy horses somebody else bred, but now we only race our homebreds; we think that's much more exciting."

Roche is expecting 2013 to be a breakout year for Carmalley Valley Farm.

"We have many 2-year-olds and 3-year-olds that are going to hit the track this year, and our breeders' awards will also be kicking in," the owner said. "We've really streamlined our operation to be successful going forward. We've built the business and put a lot of time, effort, and resources into it all, knowing the gestation period would be at least four to five years, and now it is time to see it blossom." BH
