Sweet Candy

Candyland Farm's Herb and Ellen Moelis have raised millions for retired racehorses

BY STEVE HASKIN

ALONG THE MAGICAL road through Candyland, you will find Queen Frostine, Princess Lolly, Lord Licorice, and Herb and Ellen Moelis. You won't find the last two names anywhere on the children's popular board game, but you will find them in a real-life fairy tale setting, providing aftercare for retired horses, granting veterinary scholarships, and assisting in a number of other worthy causes.

Oh, yes, and they also breed Thoroughbreds at their 160-acre Candyland Farm near Middletown, Del. Several years after purchasing the farm, the native New Yorkers, with help from racing icon Allaire du Pont, started Thoroughbred Charities of America to provide homes for retired racehorses. They accomplished that through annual stallion season auctions, which became a major event in the Delaware area before moving to Kentucky in 2008.

Both Moelises had high-powered jobs in New York City, but the lure of farm life had begun to cast its spell on Herb. It was not exactly the kind of spell one normally encounters growing up in East Flatbush, Brooklyn.

But years later, in 1986, here was Herb, a successful CPA and tax attorney, and Ellen, president and major stockholder of one of the largest residential real estate management companies in New York, driving down to Maryland and Delaware one morning "just to look around." For what, Ellen had no idea.

"She didn't have the vaguest idea I was even interested in a farm," Moelis said. "I had raced a few horses, and Tommy Skiffington was my trainer at Fair Hill. We visited him and he put me in touch with some real estate agent. We drove around and by the time we drove back that night I owned a farm. As we drove home, I said to Ellen, 'This has to

Special Note For Sire Lists:

For stallions that stand, will stand, or stood (deceased) in North America (stallions exported prior to the 2008 breeding season are excluded), and have runners in North America. All available statistics listed for the Northern Hemisphere through December 31, 2012. As supplied to The Blood-Horse by The Jockey Club Information Systems, Inc., earnings exclude monies from Japan and Hong Kong. Current year stakes winners include all N.H.-foaled stakes winners worldwide and any S.H.-foaled horses that won a N.H. stakes. *Foal counts include Southern Hemisphere. Cumulative stakes winners includes all countries. (A ♯ indicates a sire represented by his first crop to race.) (2013 racing statistics through Jan. 29. Sires exported prior to the 2009 breeding season are excluded) be the dumbest thing I ever did.' For the first three years my wife never got out of her high heels. Running a business in New York, she couldn't get used to the idea you didn't wear high heels on a farm.

*AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX AND COMPARABLE INDEX: Lifetime AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00; COMPARABLE INDEX indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AVERAGE-EARNINGS INDEX higher than their mares' COMPARABLE INDEX.

"For years we came down on weekends on Amtrak and stayed in a motel. We decided to just put up one of these mobile homes on the farm. Eventually, we built our house. There was a barn and fencing that needed repair. We've done a lot in 25 years. Fortunately, after several years of using different farm managers, we hired Mike Palmer in 1995. He was assistant to Tom Skiffington, and he's been here ever since."

Moelis' father was a bettor who would often attend the races, but his son was more interested in the Brooklyn Dodgers and had little interest in the racetrack. He did, however, like reading the Stroud Real Estate catalogs for the farm listings and would dream about owning one and living a quiet life far removed from the hustle and bustle of the city. After going into business, he became exposed to racing and began connecting the dots.

"I sold my equipment leasing and security systems business to an English company, and they said, 'Come on, let's invest in a racehorse,'" Moelis recalled. "So I gave them a few bucks, and we bought a horse named La Reine Rose, who was a pretty good horse, placing in some stakes. I never knew what I could do on a farm, but as a sports fan and a new horse owner, I was able to connect it to racing."

The Moelises still are city folks at heart and were fortunate to find a farm that was an hour from Philadelphia, two hours from New York City, an hour from Baltimore, and less than two hours from Washington, D.C.

In the beginning they bred and raced but have pretty much given up on the racing end.

"We used to do a lot more racing than we do now, but the medication rules and the vet bills got to me," Moelis said. "At first we raced between seven and 10 horses, but by racing horses we couldn't breed to sell because people felt we were racing our best horses and selling the culls. You can't sell that way, and to me the game is really breeding and selling. So that's what we do, and we enjoy it immensely. The only horses we race now are the RNAs and horses we just don't sell."

Eventually, their broodmare band grew to 20, and they now keep about 15 mares. Since purchasing the farm, they have bred eight stakes winners, including American Boss, who captured four graded stakes in Japan from 1999-2001. They also bred

Private Chef, winner of the Will Rogers Stakes (gr. III) at Hollywood Park in 2003. Most recently they bred Motion to Appeal, winner of the 2012 Leemat Stakes at Presque Isle Downs, and The Funky Express, who captured stakes at Aqueduct and Delaware Park in 2011.

"In the beginning we bought a couple of broodmares," Moelises recalled. "To show my inexperience, I bought two broodmares, one for $5,000 named Canadiana Peach and one for $45,000 named Wabash Coed. I wanted to learn how to handle a horse, so I said to my farm manager at the time, 'You take one horse and I'll take the other and I'll just watch what you do.' So he took the $5,000 mare and I got the $45,000 mare. He walks in the paddock and turns the horse around and lets her go and says, 'Now it's your turn.' I thought it was like working with a dog. I unhooked the lead shank outside the paddock, as if, 'OK, now you can go in.' Well, before I knew what was happening, here was my $45,000 running down the driveway, and I thought, 'We'll I'm out $45,000 before I even start. We got the mare and I learned my lesson.'

In 1990 the Moelises found a new calling that will become their legacy long after Candyland Farm is gone.

After the closing of the Delaware Park meet, du Pont, who was a good friend of the Moelises, learned of a number of horses that had been abandoned at the track and were found living in stalls behind closed doors. She proceeded to write a scathing letter about it that was published in the Mid-Atlantic Thoroughbred. The Moelises read the letter and eventually met with her with the idea of working together in an attempt to prevent anything like that from happening again. The only way to accomplish that was to help find homes for retired and unwanted horses. But that would require raising money. They came up with the idea of holding a stallion season auction at Candyland every year. They formed Thoroughbred Charities of America and their new mission in life had begun.

"The auction was sort of like horses helping horses," Moelis said. "We solicited some Maryland stal-

Herb and Ellen at Candyland Farm during the Thoroughbred Charities of America auction in 2001; below, Palmer with a Candyland yearling lion seasons from friends like the Pons brothers at Country Life Farm and Richard Golden, and also several silent auction items and held the auction in our house. We raised $15,000 and donated it to one organization, simply because there was only one organization at the time that was involved with horse rescue and retirement. It just continued to grow after that. We eventually put up big tents in the paddocks and had up to 500 people attending.

"My wife and I did most of the work, but Allaire opened many doors for us that not many people could open. She was the grand dame of racing. We would make the pitch, and, fortunately, most farms were cooperative. Over the next few years we expanded our stallion seasons to include stallions standing in Kentucky, Florida, New York, and other states."

With proceeds now up to around $1 million, the TCA was able to support a number of groups involved with rescuing and retraining retired racehorses. Not only is the TCA able to provide a better life for Thoroughbreds during and after their racing careers, their efforts also include backstretch workers and farm employees.

"We allowed people to designate specific charities, like Grayson Research, and a portion of the grants go there," Moelis said. "The grants are a very careful selection process, designated by a committee that I sat on that would do extensive analysis of the aftercares we donated to. There are now a lot of rescue and retirement organizations, and we investigate them very carefully to make sure they're doing the job properly.

"The downturn in the economy has hurt at times, but it became the event of the year in Delaware. It was in the middle of the winter and everybody looked forward to it.”

In 2008 the TCA became affiliated with the Thoroughbred Owners and Breeders Association and the auction was moved to Kentucky for practical reasons. With Keeneland donating the use of its facilities, proceeds from the auction climbed to $2 million.

“Most of the seasons were being donated by Kentucky farms, and the feeling was it would increase the revenues greatly,” Moelis said. “One of the most satisfying accomplishments was, after we moved to Kentucky, we asked Keeneland to give us the entertainment center to do the live auction. The one condition was that the Fasig-Tipton people who used to come to Delaware to conduct our auction—Terence Collier and Walt Robertson—continue to do so. The auction, held around the time of the Keeneland January sale, had to be done with Fasig-Tipton auctioneers. They thought about it a while and said they would do it. It was the first time Keeneland and Fasig-Tipton actually worked together, and did it for charity.”

Over the years the TCA has contributed more than $20 million to aftercare. Moelis retired as president three years ago, with Dan Rosenberg, former farm manager at Three Chimneys Farm, taking over the position.

Moelis feels the decision to affiliate with TOBA was one that needed to be made to assure the continuation of the TCA.

“My thought was, Ellen and I basically ran it for 20 years and we’re not going to be around forever, but I would like this organization to be around forever,” Moelis said. “TOBA is an organization that is going to be here for many years, so for continuity purposes I thought it was a good organization to affiliate with. Some people object to TOBA and won’t give us seasons, but that is offset by the people who believe in TOBA and give us seasons because of that. The trade-off is the continuity.”

Since his retirement Moelis and his wife set up another organization, the Thoroughbred Education and Research Foundation, which grants scholarships to veterinary students.

Although 81, Moelis still remains active on all fronts. He also was instrumental in setting up the Delaware Certified Program.

“We have no stallion or state-bred programs so we set up this program which states, if you send a horse to a Delaware farm for 90 days before they’re 2-year-olds, they become certified to receive a bonus, similar to state-bred bonuses,” Moelis said.

“We never took outside boarders at the farm, but to help this program along we began to, and we wound up having a young Havre de Grace on the farm before she turned 2, along with Old Fashioned and other good horses. We’re helping the program, and we get a kick out of having connections with these big horses.

“By doing so, I’ve been able to train my eye to see the difference between horses like Havre de Grace and other horses. I told Rick Porter (who raced Havre de Grace) the only reason Havre de Grace did so well is that she ate Candyland grass. We used to root for her like she was our own. It was obvious even that early she was special.”

There is no doubt the Thoroughbred industry owes a great deal to the Moelises and all they have done to repay the horses and the people who care for them.

“It’s been a great ride,” Moelis said. “Hopefully, this industry will straighten itself out a bit. I feel we’re getting there.” BH
