

Blossoming in Texas

BY LESLIE DECKARD

Jeanne Ann Stasny might be a new kid on the Thoroughbred industry block, but she knows what she wants to accomplish, and bases her business decisions on the philosophy that everything comes back to the proper growth, development, and management of the horse.

Stasny is the owner and operator of Texas-based Blossom Racing Stable, which was designed as a commercial operation to bridge the gap between the potential and reality of a Thoroughbred racehorse's ability.

"My business plan is to develop quality winners for owners," she said, basing the name of her operation on how horses "blossom" as they grow and develop. "We are all about developing the horses and trying to close the gap between what I call the acquisition stage and the reality of racehorse ability stage. There are a lot of people that buy horses once they know what kind of horse they are, and there are a lot of people who will buy horses at the auction stage, but there are not very many people who deal with the horses in the middle. We are all about trying to create racehorses."

The vision statement for Blossom Racing

Stable reads: To be a leading racing stable in the southern racing circuit and build national standing as a provider of quality racehorses with future potential for racing enthusiasts at reasonable prices.

All Blossom racehorses are available for private purchase.

"Sometimes we sell a horse that has not made a start, but we prefer to have the horse break its maiden, either in a claiming race or special weight, so we inform the new owner of what we think the horse's ability level will be," Stasny said. "We want the new owner to know our honest opinion about the horse."

Stasny bases her stable out of the 99-acre

*A-E and COMPARABLE INDEX: The lifetime Average-Earnings Index indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned, on the average, in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00. The Comparable Index indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AEI higher than their mares Comparable Index.

*A-E and COMPARABLE INDEX: The lifetime Average-Earnings Index indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned, on the average, in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00. The Comparable Index indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AEI higher than their mares Comparable Index.

Blossom Farm near Decatur, Texas, where she believes her horses should be treated like horses, spending a considerable amount of time outdoors. She has a broodmare band of around 30 and stands two stallions—11-year-old Menhal, a winning son of Danzig—Coxwold, by Cox's Ridge, and 12-year-old Serazzo (Kris S.—La Chasposa, by Ups).

"I believe this is a game of numbers, so I don't think you can have one or two broodmares," she said. "I also believe at a certain capacity that you start to lose quality. I want to know every one of my broodmares, not just by name, but by their personality, so I can breed them properly and try to produce the best racehorse out of them that I can. I don't want to get any bigger than what I can handle in my own mind. I plan to get down to 15-20 broodmares."

Stasny decided to purchase stallions not as a way to profit from stud fees or to build her farm, but to increase the quality of the horses she offers current and future clients.

"What I find is if you breed your own, you have a better chance of getting a quality animal at an affordable price," she said. "The horses that are the best-looking athletes as yearlings with great catalog pages, showing depth of female family and great sires, I can't afford. The whole point behind breeding was to be able to produce a better-quality animal than what I could purchase, because my end customers are people that like to race with proven horses. They don't want to take a lot of risk and buy babies. I have to be able to sell a horse that is healthy and that has a good pedigree that will produce some residual value after it gets done racing."

In addition to the quest of breeding a quality animal, Stasny is using the Texas Stallion Stakes to market her horses and her sires. "Unfortunately, in the South, we don't have really great purses and it is a challenge to breed and race here," she said. "The Texas Stallion Stakes is probably one of the best-paying returns to develop young horses there is in the state. If they paid those races no matter what stallion I bred to, then I probably would not own stallions, but they don't so, I do own stallions that I believe in.

"The Texas stallion program afforded me the opportunity to shoot for something long-term while I am developing my horses," she continued. "Menhal and Serazzo are the type of horses that I respect and believe can get me a better racehorse. I did not buy the two of them with the purpose of collecting stud fees, although we do stand them to the public. I am not worried whether people breed them or not, because I am standing them so I can produce a better racehorse and run in my market as I try to find horses that are special to sell to other people."

Menhal is the sire of 15 foals with five to race. All of his starters are winners, and to date have earned $116,579. Serazzo entered stud in 2006 and his first crop of foals are now yearlings of 2008.

In choosing broodmares at auction, Stasny looks for mares with strong female families that have proven themselves on the racetrack and have shown they can produce runners. "We are real big on the package concept and not just picking the horse apart," she said. "If the horse has something that other people would pick apart, maybe I will look at that horse anyway. I like to say that all horses have flaws, but the good ones carry them well."

IN THE GATE

In keeping with her belief that horses should be treated like horses and not over-managed, Stasny and her crew at Blossom Farm created what she calls "starting gates" for her weanlings and yearlings in an attempt for them to develop trusting bonds with humans.

"I don't believe in stalls, and I don't believe in over-managing our babies because I think that is where a lot of problems come in," she said. "We put them in stalls when they don't belong in stalls. Our starting gates are a concept we developed to bridge the gap between not wanting to have our horses stalled, but not wanting them to be wild, either."

Stasny describes her starting gates like this: "What happens is we have somewhat narrow gates that are panels, and they are probably about four-feet apart and 12-feet long. We have them up next to the fence, side by side, like a starting gate at the race-track," she said. "We have a food bucket in each one of the slots. There are gates in the back with a bar over them so they have to walk under a bar and come into a slot to eat, and then we shut the gate and they all eat as individuals, yet they are standing beside one another so they get used to being in a paneled stall.

"After they finish eating, they can turn around and come to the gate, and we ask them to wait because we are trying to teach them patience, and then we go in and brush them or pick up their feet and handle them," she continued. "After that we walk them out holding their halters. When they come out of their gates they stand and we pet and handle them and then let them go run."

Stasny, who keeps a maximum of 12 weanlings on the farm at any given time, said she was probably more proud of her starting gates than anything else on her farm.

"I had always loved horses and grew up around them, but I was not raised in a professional environment that managed a lot of horses," she said. "I was quite green when I got into this business, and I went

There is plenty of room for the horses to run and play at Blossom Farm

EL LOBO
TIGERLINE

VELOCITY FARMS

is offering $50,000 to the owner/breeder of the first $100,000 earning foal from the 2008 breeding season sired by our participating stallions.

There is nothing special you have to do to be eligible for the $50,000; no hidden clauses. It is very simple, and your foal can earn the money any way, from claiming races to stakes races, as long as it adds up to $100,000 (calculated and published by the Daily Racing Form/Equibase).

VELOCITY FARMS wants our freshman sires to start their breeding careers off with a little extra. We feel this incentive will make the resulting foals more attractive to buyers, making sales prices higher, thus making our stallions more attractive to breeders.

We put considerable thought into this INCENTIVE PROGRAM and feel it will be a benefit to both owners and breeders.

Money to be paid out as follows:
$25,000 to the listed breeder of the foal and $25,000 to the listed owner of the foal.

This payment will be made by check or wire transfer on the first business day that the winner's earnings are published by the Daily Racing Form/Equibase.

VELOCITY FARMS also offers a ONE-OF-A-KIND RESIDENT MARE PROGRAM, $300 per month, includes, feed, all shots, farrier work, dental work, all normal repro work, foaling your mare, and we halter break your foal! Free transportation to the farm on 3 or more mares from any state, with a signed resident contract.

Additionally, we offer sales preparation for your horse, boarding, layups, stallion management, and start to finish training for your racing prospect.

We have an on site lab for all repro work from ultrasounds, on site stallion collections for semen evaluation or shipping.

*A-E and COMPARABLE INDEX: The lifetime Average-Earnings Index indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned, on the average, in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00. The Comparable Index indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AEI higher than their mares Comparable Index.

through the process of visiting a lot of farms, some that kept their horses in stalls, which produced horses that were professional and could do their business, and then other places that did not keep their horses in stalls. Those horses would be so crazy wild that nobody wanted to work on their feet or go into the paddock to get them up. So, honestly, it was desperation that made me try this concept. Necessity is the mother of all invention."

FROM THE HART

Blossom currently has between six and 10 horses on the track with various trainers. The best runner to date to represent Blossom is the homebred 3-year-old Hartfelt, winner of the M2 Technology La Senorita Stakes at Retama Park. Hartfelt (Kafwain—Silver Trainor, by Silver Hawk), who was recently sent to trainer Barclay Tagg, had two wins in two starts for trainer Tony Edison.

Stasny twice offered Hartfelt at public auction. She was bought back for $6,500 under the name JR Stables at the 2006 Keeneland September yearling sale from the Double R consignment and Blossom Farm, agent. Hartfelt was then offered at the 2007 Ocala Breeders' Sales Co.'s April 2-year-olds in training sale from the Double R consignment and Blossom Farm, agent, where she failed to meet her reserve and was bought back for $23,000.

"It was almost like it was meant to be for me to keep Hartfelt," Stasny said. "My feelings were a little hurt that she did not sell well at either location, but that is the nature of this business. Not all horses appeal to all buyers."

In addition to Hartfelt, Blossom, in partnership with Bob Spring, also campaigns stakes winner Picaso, winner of the Oklahoma Classics Juvenile. Blossom purchased the Oklahoma-bred Picaso (Alphabet Soup—Break Through, by Prosper Fager) for $30,000 at the 2007 Fasig-Tipton Texas April 2-year-olds in training sale from the consignment of his breeder, Diamond G Ranch, agent.

Like most people involved in the Thoroughbred industry, Stasny's love of horses was born at a very young age.

*A-E and COMPARABLE INDEX: The lifetime Average-Earnings Index indicates how much purse money the progeny of one sire has earned, on the average, in relation to the average earnings of all runners in the same years; average earnings of all runners in any year is represented by an index of 1.00. The Comparable Index indicates the average earnings of progeny produced from mares bred to one sire, when these same mares were bred to other sires. Only 32% of all sires have a lifetime AEI higher than their mares Comparable Index.

Calling herself a "Southern-bred," Stasny has roots in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas. It was her time spent in Oklahoma with her grandparents that created her passion for horses and her love of Doberman Pincher dogs, which her grandparents bred and showed nationally. It was her grandparents who Stasny credits for teaching her conformation and pedigrees.

"I grew up with one horse and one dog," Stasny said. "I had a Welsh pony that was just awful. He always threw me. I had a friend who had a retired Thoroughbred, and she let me ride him and I just fell in love. He was much different than my pony."

A graduate of the University of Houston College of Pharmacy, Stasny said she waited until she "grew up" and sold her professional business, where she was a pharmacist and developed a software program for her industry, before she jumped into the Thoroughbred game with both feet. "I got out of the pharmacy business in 2000 and incorporated Blossom in early 2004. I used the time between selling my business and incorporating to develop my business plan and to read and study about the horse business. I also needed time to be Mom to my kids (son Ryan, 20, and daughter Olivia, 13)."

At a time when many breeders are questioning the future of the Thoroughbred industry in Texas due to being surrounded by states—Louisiana, New Mexico, and Oklahoma—that offer expanded gaming, which in turn fuels increased purses and pads breeders' funds, Stasny is comfortable remaining in Texas, and plans to grow her business in the Lone Star State.

"Put it like this, if I wasn't a Texan and didn't love my home state, I would be gone (due to the state of the industry right now)," she said. "Texas racing and breeding needs as much support as it can garner right now, and I am not planning on leaving. I could probably move out of state and make more money and be more successful, but leaving the place I call home when it needs me is not something I want to do. Texas needs all of us breeders and owners right now. And I don't plan on leaving the state or the industry any time soon." 🐾

The University of Arizona Race Track Industry Program announced its annual award winners at the 34th annual Symposium on Racing & Gaming held Dec. 3-6 in Tucson, Ariz.

The 2007 Clay Puett Award was presented to Stan Bergstein, executive vice president of Harness Tracks of America, for his outstanding contributions to the racing industry.

The 2007 John K. Goodman Alumni Award, honoring one of the RTIP's distinguished alumni for outstanding contributions to the industry, was awarded to Joe Osborne, the managing director of Darley's Irish operation and the director of the Darley Flying Start management training course.

The Distinguished Student Award, which recognizes academic and personal growth and achievement, was given to Jon Forbes. Forbes worked as an editorial intern for The Blood-Horse last summer. He has also done freelance work for California Thoroughbred, Standardbredcanada.com, the American Quarter Horse Association's Racing Journal, and other organizations.

The third annual People's Choice Awards, announcing the Symposium attendees' favorite television commercials of 2007, were also awarded. First place went to the California Thoroughbred Racing Industry for "Tattoo." "Born to Run," submitted by ATG Sweden, took second place, with third going to River Downs for "Fast Filly-Wiener Dog."

■ PEPPERS PRIDE STILL UNDEFEATED

Peppers Pride overcame her 127-pound impost to register a 14th consecutive victory when she won the Dec. 16 New Mexico State Racing Commission Handicap by 1½ lengths at Sunland Park. The now-5-year-old daughter of Desert God—Lady Pepper, by Chili Pepper Pie, is pursuing the modern day record of 16 straight victories that is held jointly by Citation, Cigar, Hallowed Dreams, and Mister Frisky.

According to trainer Joel Marr, Peppers Pride may next be pointed to the March 23 Sydney Valentini Handicap. She won the one-mile event against New Mexico-bred fillies a year ago for breeder/owner Joe Allen. With her most recent win, the filly has earned $756,665. She was also named the Zia Park horse of the meet following multiple victories at the New Mexico track.

■ FRESHMAN STALLION DYNAMEAUX GETS FIRST WINNER

Freshman Texas stallion Dymeaux picked up his first winner when the Texas-bred Dynamic Cowgirl scored a maiden special weight victory at Sam Houston Race Park Dec. 16. The 2-year-old filly went 5½ furlongs in 1:05.93 to win by 1½ lengths. She is owned by Carol Heltzel and was bred by Dr. Richard Mays, who stands the 9-year-old Dymeaux at his Key to the Hills Farm near Boerne, Texas.

■ DIXIELAND HEAT TO KEY RANCH

Dixieland Heat, the sire of grade I winner Xtra Heat, has been relocated to Joe and Sharon Kerby's Key Ranch near Salado, Texas, for the 2008 breeding season. He will stand for a private stud fee as property of Leland and Sue Cook.

A graded stakes-winning son of Dixieland Band, Dixieland Heat earned $426,749 in his career while winning nine of 18 starts. From nine crops to race, the 17-year-old stallion has sired the earners of more than $8 million. Dixieland Heat has also sired Texas champion Coastalota and grade III winner Heat It Up. He previously stood at Q6 Ranch, also near Salado.
